A diligent secretary

Victor, refined for materials and details, is composed of two elegant writing desks, with a feminine soul and a masculine name.

The table rests on a bronze structure, whose slight movement contrasts with the linearity of the top, which in addition to the wood presents precious coatings - parchment and galuchat. A bronze pencil bowl 'sinks' into the top.

The writing desk with drawers has a bronze base and a shutter unit in morado wood, to hide the most intimate objects.

The discreet shutter disappears when the hand pulls out the writing table. The interior of the drawers are covered in leather.
